

Newsletter: January 2018:

Warning - dangerous puffins ahead...

What's new in January?

Prepare for puffin-action shortly, with a new Gordon album coming in March, a new single in Feb, fresh despair, a tailor-made video for the single, exciting apocalyptic recipes, an album-overview-video, challenging flirtations with fat birds, penguin conspiracy theories (Not Clickbait, I'm So Glad I'm Still Alive), dance tips for the quadruped-about-town, interviews with all and sundry and more besides.

First up – a new single on Feb 1st. 'God's Not Great' is the sad tale of God, who thought he was was great but then turned out not to be. God was created by Chris Townson, rather than the other way around, as is often thought.

Accompanying God (but not in the Trumpian porn-model sense) is an epilepsy-inducing video, created by Berlin-based graphic artist Yanev Topyol.

The new album will follow on March 1st. Videos, graphics and all that stuff... And an illustrated fairy story about puffins. Snappy little buggers, some of them.

And then there will be gigs, initially here in Berlin – first one on Saturday March 24th in the Brauhaus Sudstern, home of the world's strongest beer.

And finally, something to read. Legendary producer/engineer Richard Digby Smith (he was responsible for Kimono and Led Zep III & IV, as well as mastering the new album) finally talks about his lengthy career working with the great, the good and the downright absurd.

More about all this very soon...
